BLIMP, GUARD JOIN HUNT FOR GIRL, 2,

Foul Play Hinted—As hundreds of police, coast-guardsmen and volunteers scouted a 13-mile area in Marshfield for little Judy Geagan, 2, of Medford, who has been missing since last night, authorities investigated possibilities of foul play. Two residents of the summer colony reported they saw a child crying in the back seat of a black sedan in the neighborhood a short time after the girl disappeared.

New Sea-Air Blow K.O.'s Jap Plants

By LEIF ERICKSON

GUAM, July 18 (AP)—The audacious U. S. Third Fleet and companion British warships stalked the coast of Japan unmolested today as radio Tokyo admitted their big guns had demolished their newest target—huge war plants north of Tokyo. The fleet has concealed its course

Nips Eat Locusts--Yum Yum!

Several "tasty" new flours designed to ease the food shortage are being whipped up for home consumption in Japan.

One is made of wheat flour, locusts and waste starch. Another is concocted from dregs remaining after processing alcohol from sweet potatoes.

Still another, bamboo grass flour, the Japs say, is used as a substitute for staple products—and is excellent in school lunches.

The locust flour is concocted by drying and powdering locusts caught by school children. The formula is 100 parts wheat flour, 10 parts locusts and 30 of waste starch. The locusts and starch are mixed and the sand taken out by a blowing process.

Bread made from this flour is reported 30 per cent greater in nutritional value than ordinary wheat bread—at least, that's what the Jap radio says.

Hirohito Peace Plea Seen Near By Australian Press

SYDNEY, Australia, July 18 (AP)—Newspapers in Sydney today published speculative reports that "big news" relating to Japan would be forthcoming soon. One conjecture was Japan may be suing for peace, another that Russia may have decided to enter the Pacific war.

(Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew in Washington denied last week any genuine peace overtures had been received from Japan.)

"The end of the war may come with dramatic suddenness," commented the Sydney Sun.

"Hirohito is still the god-emperor," the editorial said. "By one stroke of a pen he could relieve Japan's torments any minute. There is every reason to believe that United States policy is preserving him for that part in the drama."

The Morning Herald said nothing short of the Allies' terms would be acceptable, but added: "Japan is without military hope and might seek to escape Germany's fate."

Mom's Cake for Okinawa Reunion

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—Three home-baked fruit cakes are en route to Okinawa today for a celebration of three brothers reunited after six years.

They are Aviation MM. James L. Bellar, 21, Navy; Sgt. Charles H. Bellar, 26, Army; and Cpl. Bobbie Bellar, 20, of the Marines.

Their mother, Mrs. Frank K. Bellar of Washington, baked and mailed the cakes after her sons wrote they were unable to round up enough special food for a real celebration.

Belgians Pass Law Making King Exile

BRUSSELS, July 18 (AP)—Leopold III, King of the Belgians, who refused to abdicate voluntarily, was made an exile by law today by Parliament.

The Belgian senate passed, 77 to 38, the measure approved by the chamber of deputies which prevents the absent king from returning to the throne until Parliament consents. It is still to be signed as a formality by the regent and brother of Leopold, Prince Charles.

USS Nevada Hit Off Okinawa

WASHINGTON, July 18 (INS)—The brilliant Jap and Nazi-busting record of the old battleship Nevada was disclosed today by the Navy, revealing that the dreadnought was damaged by enemy coastal gunfire and a suicide plane off Okinawa.

The Japs claimed the Nevada was sunk at Pearl Harbor, but she was reconditioned after being damaged and beached, and came back to support the landings in Normandy and southern France, Attu, Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

At Okinawa the Nevada absorbed one flaming Jap suicide plane and five hits from coastal guns and remained in the battle, killing Japs and knocking out shore positions.

2 Minesweepers Lost Off Borneo

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—Loss of two motor mine sweepers in the Borneo area as result of enemy action was announced today.

The ships, the YMS 50 and the YMS 365, had a normal complement of about 35 each.

There were none killed or missing, the Navy said, but no information was available on number of wounded.

The YMS 365 was under command of Lt. (jg) Fred C. Huff, Jr., New Orleans.

The YMS 50 was commanded by Lt. (jg) Blake G. Stern, Logan, Ia.

Truman Seeks Red Pacific Aid

By PIERRE J. HUSS

POTSDAM, July 18 (INS)—President Truman today strengthened his bid for Russian help in the Pacific war by telling Generalissimo Stalin current Allied fleet bombardments of the Tokyo area were clear evidence of Anglo-American domination of the approaches to Japan.

The President's bold diplomatic move was made by taking dispatches of the fleet action with him on a call to the Soviet leader's residence.

Whether well-timed or coincidental to the Big Three meeting, the terrific punishment inflicted on the Jap mainland by American and British battleships and planes put an invaluable trump card in the President's hand.

The man from Missouri also was quick to take advantage of Adm. Nimitz's statement that the "pre-emption stage with Japan has been reached."

It can be taken for granted that Stalin grasped the significance of this demonstration of Allied sea and air power. Russian circles indicated they were impressed and seemed to know all about the Pacific action, apparently from comprehensive reports forwarded to Stalin from Moscow.

As past experience has shown, that's the kind of language Stalin understands. President Truman can now press home his bid for Russian cooperation in the Pacific.

Although nothing concrete has been admitted over today's meeting of the Big Three it seems certain the naval assaults on Japan would hold the top position in the initial sessions.

President Truman first lunched with Prime Minister Churchill, the men with Stalin.

Stalin Blackout

BERLIN, July 18 (AP)—Berliners found out they had not seen the last of blackouts with the end of the war.

Russian authorities preparing for Stalin's arrival at the Big Three conference decreed windows of all buildings along railway tracks leading out of Berlin to Moscow and Potsdam should be boarded up or blacked out so occupants could not peep out when Stalin's train passed.

Truman Is Host To GI Nephew

BERLIN, July 18 (INS)—Sgt. Harry A. Truman, 21-year-old nephew and namesake of the President, began a surprise vacation in the Berlin area today as guest of the chief executive.

Sgt. Truman arrived by plane from London. The President had told Army officials he had a nephew somewhere in Europe and that he hoped he would get to see him.

The sergeant was on the Queen Elizabeth about to sail for home. He was taken from the liner, sent to London and flown to Berlin.

Sgt. Truman, a former University of Missouri student, is staying in the compound assigned to President Truman's party.

Night Air Raids Batter Honshu

By Associated Press

Tokyo reported 83 bombers and fighters raided southern Japan this morning, a handful of Navy patrol bombers hit Honshu island south of Tokyo, and 30 Superforts flew widely over the islands during the night, scouting and dropping propaganda leaflets. Liberators and Black Widow night fighters struck at the industrial coast 55 to 80 miles northeast of Tokyo last night before the American-British bombardment fleet moved in.

Land-based aircraft combined with PT boats to sink or damage 150 more small Japanese vessels. Naval patrol planes from the Philippines accounted for 100 river craft in the Amey, Swatow and Hong Kong areas of the China coast.

Australian combat patrols on Borneo felt out enemy strong-points along the highway to Sama-rinda and in the Sambodia area where the Diggers are consolidating for a drive through derricks and oil installations.

Resistance continued in northern Luzon.

Inland three Chinese columns closed in on Kweilin, former main U. S. airbase in southeast China. Advances up to seven miles placed Chinese 11 miles northwest, 12 miles west and 33 miles southwest of Kweilin. The Nipponese made a futile attempt to restore their escape route to the north, cut recently by the Chinese.

Pocketed Japs in the northern Philippines fought desperately with makeshift weapons, including mortars made from three-inch galvanized pipe, against U. S. Sixth Army troops trying out revolutionary non-recoil 57 and 75-MM. artillery which they said would be ideal for cave fighting in the mountains of Japan.

A climatic battle in South Burma was expected as about 6000 Jap troops massed along both banks in the bend of the Sittang river north of Pegu. The trapped Japanese massing to fight for a breakthrough are equipped with artillery, mortars and automatic weapons.

Calls U. S. Fliers 'Spoiled Brats'

By TOM RILEY

Thirty months' service overseas as a Red Cross worker in Italy has convinced Miss Barbara Campbell, 28, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Campbell of Concord ave., Cambridge, that U. S. infantrymen are "all 100 per cent natural American backyard boys who do their work gravely, without fuss, seeking no glory."

By the same token, she considers most air force members, especially junior officers, "spoiled brats."

The outspoken blonde Red Cross worker is home on a 30-day furlough. She said she has had ample opportunity to compare infantrymen with men of the air force, because she has served with both groups.

In Algiers, Sicily and Italy she worked with various divisions. Among the first non-combatants to land in North Africa, she was at Casablanca in January, 1943.

At Oran, in Algeria, she served with the 3d Division's 30th Infantry. At Argue she worked with the 45th and 36th Infantry. In Sicily, when the GIs were preparing for the invasion of Italy, she wrote last letters home for many boys.

Her experience with aviators came in Italy. In October, 1943, the only girl aboard the plane, she flew to Naples from Sicily, but a battle was raging when they landed and they had barely time to refuel and take off for Foggia. There she served as a Red Cross service worker with the 12th and 15th Air Forces.

"The dogfoots were thrilled to get ice cream at Red Cross canteens, and they were grateful," Miss Campbell said. "But not the Air Force men. If we had chocolate, they wanted strawberry. They wanted the best of everything, and at the snap of their fingers. If they didn't get it, they'd kick up a fuss."

"I prefer the infantrymen to all the gold brad in any and all the branches of the service," she added.

Girl Found Dead, Gas Jets Open

The body of a 17-year-old girl, identified by police as Edna Theresa Thomas of Bristol st., Cambridge, was found today in a second-floor apartment living room in Washington Elms, the victim of illuminating gas poisoning.

Medical examiner John Wilcox said the death was due to accidental asphyxiation.

The girl's body was discovered in the home of her sister, Mrs. Greta M. Sheehan, who is believed to be vacationing in New Hampshire.

Neighbors detected the odor of gas in the apartment and a door was forced. The girl was found fully clothed on a day-bed.

Posses, Blimp Hunt Missing Baby Girl

A search by land, air and sea, probably the most intensively co-ordinated in all the State's history, was swiftly enlarging today as authorities strove to find 2-year-old Judy Geagan, the tousle-haired tot who vanished at 7 o'clock last night from the Marshfield summer cottage of her parents.

The Coast Guard, Navy, state troopers, state detectives, Marshfield police and hundreds of civilian volunteers were combing a 13-mile-square area along the Marshfield shore. A Navy blimp floated slowly and low in the hazy sky, a two-way radio aboard for contact with State Police cars.

Exhausted after pacing vigil on the beach all night and crying unashamedly as dawn broke without a trace of his child, William Geagan of Henley st., Medford, appealed to Gov. Tobin to have

BULLETIN

Gov. Tobin ordered Adj. Gen. William J. Keville this afternoon to assign 150 State Guardsmen to join in the South Shore hunt for missing two-year-old Judy Geagan. Orders for the troopers were sent to Camp O'Connor at Framingham, where the Guard is on annual maneuvers.

members of the State Guard join the search.

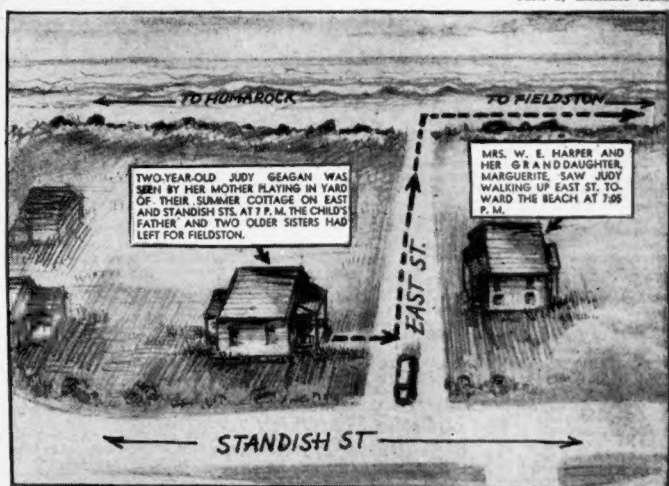

Bloodhounds from the Lincoln barracks of the Rhode Island state police were brought to the Geagan cottage this afternoon and made familiar with the scent of the little girl's clothing. A Labrador retriever owned by Patrolman Ellsworth of the Marshfield police, and two trackers owned by William Rose of Marshfield were also added to the search.

Police Chief Clifford Vallier of Marshfield turned over to Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dowling information pointing to the possi-

What Missing Child Wore

Two-year-old Judy Geagan, who vanished from her family's Marshfield cottage at 7 o'clock last night, was wearing a blue dress, red corduroy overalls, beige jacket with red trimmings, yellow socks and brown shoes.

She has blue eyes, curly brown hair and is stocky, weighing 33 pounds for her 32-inch height.

tage, a few minutes after her father and two sisters, Carol Ann, 7, and Barbara, 4, passed that way on a walk to Fieldston, Marshfield recreation center.

It was a foggy night. The tide was in and had been ebbing only an hour. The surf was unusually high. State Police began dragging operations off the shore, Rixham Beach, early this afternoon. Judy's father would not enter.

Communists Hold Army Commissions

By RAYMOND WILCOVE

WASHINGTON, July 18 (INS)—A House military affairs subcommittee reported today that an investigation had disclosed 16 Army commissioned and enlisted personnel with a "Communist background," including four in the highly-secret Office of Strategic Services.

The 16 included Sgt. Samuel Dashiell Hammett, author of the "Thin Man," Sgt. Marc Blitstein, musician and composer, and 2 Lt. Joseph Lash.

The committee reported that 40 others with the Army, whose names were not made public, had been removed in 1942 and 1943 from various officer candidate schools and aviation cadet training schools "for alleged counterintelligence reasons."

These cases, stated the committee, "involved matters of alleged sympathy or affiliation with subversive ideologies (eight Nazi, 30 Communist, one Fascist and one Japanese)."

Nine of these were commissioned as second lieutenants, the committee stated, on orders from the office of the deputy chief of staff, and eight are serving overseas.

The committee listed the following commissioned officers with "Communist backgrounds or associations" serving in Washington with the OSS, of which Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan is chief:

Lts. Irving Fajans, Irving Goff, Vincent Lossowski, Milton Wolff. As "background," it listed Fajans as "on honor roll of Young Communist League members fighting in the Spanish civil war," Goff, "speaker, Communist school, New York city," Lossowski, "fought with Abraham Lincoln Brigade in Spanish civil war," and Wolff, "commander, Spanish Red Battalion" and "national commander of the Communist-controlled Veterans of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade."

The others listed, their posts, and some of their "background," follow:

Maj. Edward Newhouse, Army Air Force, Washington, D. C., "writer for 'The Worker,' 1934," Capt. Herbert Aptheker, field artillery, overseas, "contributor, New Masses," Capt. Elvia Collins, Naples Field, Ala., "panel member of National Action Conference for Civil Rights," "offered by the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties," "Young Communist League," "foremost Communist front organization in the United States," also Capt. Horace Warner Truesdale (also listed as Truesdale), civil affairs unit, overseas, "member American League for Peace and Democracy," Lt. Richard C. Criley, corps of military police, overseas, "as Dick Criley, helped handle California, Young Communist League," Lt. Edward W. Pinkstein, field artillery, overseas, "chairman, Philadelphia District International Workers Order," "a demonstrated... that it is a subversive instrument of the Communist party," Lt. Jerry James Traubert, field artillery, overseas, "editorial board, New Pioneer (Young Communist organization)," 2 Lt. Gerald Cook, amphibious truck company, overseas, "fought in Spanish civil war with Spanish Republican army for two years," and Lt. Joseph Lash, Camp Lee, Va., "president of American Student Union (1935), exposed as a Communist front."

Sgt. Marc Blitstein, assigned to detached service of OWI, "one of the foremost activists in Communist ranks in the United States," T3 Theodore Draper, infantry division, overseas, "editor, New Masses," Sgt. Samuel Dashiell Hammett, 1st Alaska Dept., editor camp newspaper, The Adkins, "chairman, Committee of Election Rights (chief purpose of this committee was the defense of the interests of the Communist party)."

Probe Fire Which Killed 16,000 Turkeys

SOMERS, Ct., July 18—Cause of a fire which swept through three brooder houses of the Ger-Ron Farms Corp., destroying 16,000 young turkeys destined for Thanksgiving Day tables next fall, was under investigation today.

Loss was estimated at $100,000.

Vanderbilt Taxes 30 Million

MIAMI, Fla., July 18 (AP)—A bank official appearing before the Dade County equalization board to ask reduction in assessment on the island estate of the late William K. Vanderbilt, declared today "only $5,000,000" remained to Mrs. Vanderbilt out of a one-time $35,000,000 fortune.

Frank Smathers, trust officer of the Miami Beach First National Bank, which handles the island property, said Vanderbilt left $35,000,000 when he died 18 months ago.

The government took $25,000,000 of this, Smathers said, adding that New York State taxes took another $5,000,000. "This left Mrs. Vanderbilt with only $5,000,000 of the entire fortune."

Flaw Voids Vet Voting Law

Disabled vets, expecting to vote after all the law-making in their behalf, will soon learn in letters from the Election Commission that they won't be able to cast a ballot after all.

As first requests from veterans for absentee ballots reached the Commission today, it was discovered for the first time legislation permitting them to vote had no provision for registration.

This year, the law was passed that physically disabled vets who are now shut-ins could vote in their own communities by means of absentee ballots. Since most of them were not on voting lists, only a few ballots can be cast.

Members of the Election Commission said the law would have to be amended to provide for registration.

28,000 U. S. Troops To Remain in Italy

ROME, July 18 (AP)—Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commander of U. S. forces in the Mediterranean theater, said today an American occupation force of approximately 28,000 men would remain in Italy after inactivation of the theater, scheduled for December.

Movement of all troops except occupation forces out of the Italian theater by the end of December is the American goal, but there may not be enough ships for the jobs.

N. Y. Double-Decked Buses Doomed

WASHINGTON, July 18 (INS)—The death knell of New York's famous double-decked buses was sounded today by the Fifth Avenue Coach Co.

Company Counsel Boykin C. Wright told a WLB hearing on his firm's proposal to eliminate conductors and transform the buses to one-man operation jobs.

Italian Flier Trapped Here Trying to Get U S Army Pay

The soldier-of-fortune career of Enrico DiNino brought him today before a federal commissioner, charged with impersonating a staff sergeant in the United States Air Corps while being a former lieutenant in the Italian Army Air Corps.

DiNino was turned over to the FBI when he claimed U. S. Army back pay and furlough pay.

Coming to the United States in 1937, when 14, DiNino returned to Italy in 1940, and fought with the Italian Royal Air Force against the Allies, until the surrender of Italy. Flying as an escort to British and American bombing planes, and shot down by the Germans over Greece, he assumed the

Senate Told Vets Want Jobs, Not Bonus Handout

The Senate's lone veteran of World War II, Joseph L. Murphy of Boston, minority leader, today declared servicemen are more interested in jobs after their discharges than a bonus. His remarks were made as the Senate opened debate on a House-approved bill calling for bonuses totaling $160,000,000.

Supporting a substitute measure proposing establishment of a veterans' loan fund of $20,000,000, Sen. Murphy declared:

"I am not sure whether the veterans want this bonus or just the politicians. Let's stop kidding ourselves in trying to make headlines."

Murphy said servicemen released now can get jobs "but three or four years from now conditions may be different and that's the time to help our veterans."

Sen. Donald W. Nicholson, majority leader and sponsor of the loan substitute measure, urged defeat of the House bill.

"We owe our fighting men something to help them in later years, not just $300 and then forget them."

Under the Nicholson substitute, the fund would be started with $12,000,000 from the state surplus and $8,000,000 would be added yearly by a two cent tax on cigarettes. From the fund, veterans would be permitted to borrow up to $1000 a year without interest. If the loan was unpaid at the end of the year, two percent interest would be charged on the balance.

Strong opposition to Nicholson's measure was voiced by Sen. George W. Stenton (D) of Fitchburg, who declared the House bonus bill could be financed by a monthly state lottery.

"There will be no objection to the lottery by clergymen if it is run honestly," Stenton declared. "I have introduced such a bill along with a proposal for extra dog and horse racing dates, the profits from which would go into the veterans' fund."

Stanton said he was against the State "going into the loan business." He added:

"Anyone in my district who doesn't want to give the boys a bonus can go to hell."

Another opponent of the loan fund substitute, Sen. Edward C. Pierce (D) of New Bedford, sought to introduce an amendment to Nicholson's measure which would abolish the present racing commission and set up another body authorized to take over horse and dog tracks and run them for the State.

Arthur W. Coolidge, Senate president, ruled Pierce's amendment was not in order.

STATE COUNCIL MEETINGS

The State Executive Council postponed its weekly meeting from this afternoon to next Wednesday. The council is expected to meet twice monthly during the summer.

identity of an American soldier, taking the fictitious name of Henry Michman. Liberated from a German prison camp, he was repatriated to the United States as a member of the U. S. Air Forces. The impersonation was discovered by the First Service Command when he sought further pay from the Army here.

He has resided at various addresses in and about Boston. In the uniform of a U. S. soldier he has spent some of his so-called "30-day furlough" flying planes at the East Boston air port.

He is also reported engaged to an East Boston girl, and they were to have wed within the next two weeks.

ROOFER
Mrs. Jean Riggins, 24, of Meridian st., East Boston, wields a mean hammer when it comes to putting on roofs. The only woman roofer in Boston, Mrs. Riggins flies a plane in her free time. Her husband, Clarence Riggins, is serving with the navy against Japan. With other interests she has two children.

Freed Boy Held In Child Attack

Ronald Belanger, 18, of Orchardfield st., Dorchester, placed on probation five months ago, after he admitted a series of indecent assaults on girls and women in the Fields Corner area, today was accused of molesting a 5-year-old girl.

Police said Belanger was nabbed by the child's father in Sawyer st., Dorchester, after the youngster's companion screamed as Belanger allegedly pulled the girl's dress.

Suffolk Superior Justice Raul Boudreau, who placed Belanger on probation Feb. 27, was notified of the new case by Probation Officer Ralph L. Coutie.

Judge Boudreau immediately announced he intended to revoke the suspension of a two-year jail term and send Belanger to the house of correction.

Following a conference with Chief Justice John P. Higgins, the judge issued the following statement:

"This youth was charged with assault and battery on girls in the Dorchester district. There was no charge, no jury evidence, of violation or attempted violation of the girls from the sex point of view."

"The boy had never, prior to that offense, been in conflict with the law. In other words, there was no criminal record."

"At my request, the probation officer investigated his family conditions. He found that the boy came from a good father and mother and was one of 10 children. Two or three were in the service and the rest were married, and all were law-abiding and decent."

"In consequence, I gave him the one chance that every boy and man is entitled to who is not charged with crimes of violence, to avoid further crime."

"To safeguard the public against any violations by him, I gave him a two year house of correction sentence and suspended it. I placed him on probation which carries with it a constant determination by the probation officer from week to week of his conduct, his associations, and the type of life he is leading."

"Having violated the confidence of the court placed in him, it is now my intention to revoke the suspension and impose the house of correction term."

WILL WED GROUCHO—Catherine Marie Gorcey, 24, former wife of screen actor Leo Gorcey, has obtained a license to wed Groucho Marx, 54, screen and radio comedian. She has been appearing with Groucho on a radio play. She was divorced from the former Dead End Kid in June, 1944.

Baby Dies, 44 Saved as Bus Plunges in River

RICHMOND, Va., July 18 (AP)—A heavily laden Greyhound bus inbound from Norfolk plunged into the rain-swollen waters of Gillies Creek in the edge of Richmond today when a bridge over the normally tiny stream gave way. A baby was killed.

Chief of Police E. H. Organ said he was informed 44 passengers, including two infants as well as the driver, were safe. The swirling waters of the creek swept the bus 100 yards downstream from the bridge and only one tail light, still burning, marked its position when police arrived.

Chief Organ said 37 persons, one holding a child, were on top of the all-but-submerged bus when he arrived, and that six or seven swam to safety.

N. Y. Bermuda Sailing Service to Resume

Furness, Withy & Co. of New York City today announced the resumption, on a limited basis, of passenger and freight service between New York and Bermuda.

This service will commence with the sailing of the S. S. Fort Townsend on Aug. 10, followed by the S. S. Fort Amherst on Aug. 31. These vessels are employed in the New York-Halifax-Newfoundland service (Furness Red Cross Line).

Vanderbilt Cupid In Torby's Bridal To Movie Star

A "blind date" arranged by Lt. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, was the beginning of Lt. Torbert Hart Macdonald's romance with Movie Star Phyllis Brooks, it was learned today from Macdonald's relatives here.

"Torby," famed Harvard half-back and much-decorated PT boat squadron leader, returned from the Pacific with Vanderbilt, who was also on PT duty, and the date was arranged through Vanderbilt's friends in Hollywood.

For 11 days Torby and Phyllis were inseparable, and then he had to go back to duty in the Pacific.

When he returned again to Melville, R. I., to coach the PT football team, Phyllis rushed east to be near him.

At their marriage June 23 in Tarrytown, N. Y., was Macdonald's father, John G. Macdonald of Pleasant st., Malden, the only member of his family present. His mother was unable to attend, on account of an injury.

The Macdonald parents kept it a secret from everyone, including immediate relatives, for Phyllis had promised not to announce it until her film contract had run out.

Uncover Big N. E. Black Market

OPA agents reported today they had uncovered in the Fall River-New Bedford area the biggest black market and illegal slaughtering of meat in New England.

Evidence has been gathered against live stock dealers, slaughterers, meat retailers and restaurants in that area.

More than 25 cases are being processed for court action and suspension hearings.

Wife Lives With 5 Bullets in Body

WESTBORO, July 18—Found unconscious on the floor of her milk st. home with five bullet wounds in her body, Mrs. Bertha Caldwell, 60, was taken to Memorial Hospital, Worcester, today where her condition was said to be good.

According to hospital attaches none of the bullets found a vital spot despite three wounds in the chest.

She was found by her husband, Charles Caldwell, an engineer at the Lyman School, where he returned from work.

Police said a service revolver and a note were found beside her.

HOUSE O. K.'S COURT PROBE
The House of Representatives passed to be engrossed today a resolve for an investigation of the district court system in the state.

GI's Wife Dies In Cafe Stabbing

WATERBURY, Ct., July 18 (AP)—A knifing in a Waterbury restaurant Saturday night resulted in the death of Mrs. Mary Corbett Hatch, 37, wife of a soldier, and the service of a coroner's warrant on Nicholas Lucarelli, 38, who recently came to Waterbury from Port Jervis, N. Y.

Sgt. Douglas Hatch, the victim's husband, who had been convalescing at Camp Edwards from wounds suffered when he stepped on a land mine in Germany, was at home here when his wife died.

Tobin Budget Hit As Unnecessary

Rep. Edward Staves (R.) of Southbridge, told the House Ways and Means committee all except $60,000 of Gov. Tobin's $22,060,000 supplementary budget was necessary.

Staves declared at a hearing on the budget all items were covered by the $136,000,000 postwar highway construction program.

This program, financed by the State gasoline tax, was approved yesterday by the House. Staves recommended an appropriation of $60,000 to a study of the State sewage problem.

NAZIS MURDERED HUSBAND—Mrs. Melva Wright Hein, Baltimore, holds a photo of her husband, T-Sgt. Donald Ley Hein who, she has been told by military authorities, was murdered by two German policemen at Langenselbold, Germany, Dec. 12. Authorities said the killers had confessed to shooting Sgt. Hein after he parachuted from an exploding Liberator bomber.

Hysterical Girl Tells How Man Killed Her Father

MANCHESTER, Vt., July 18 (AP)—Nearly hysterical at times, 15-year-old Dorothy Anna Stratton told a jury today, Harold Frotten, 26, former Worcester, Mass., carnival worker, fatally hit and herself with the butt end shot her father and then beat of a pistol.

Frotten is on trial, charged with murder in the first degree of Robert Stratton, in the latter's home, Oct. 21.

The girl testified the night of the shooting she and her father returned home and found Frotten. There were "words" between the men, she added, and then she said her father told Frotten he was going to call the police and tell them Frotten "had gone through the house."

At that, she said, Frotten shot the father.

She hurled a lamp at Frotten, the girl said, but she declared she did not know if it hit him. He then belabored her father and her with the pistol, she testified.

Frotten, she told the jury, then said he was going and that "I will kill you if you leave."

Charge Reduced In Eames Death

MIAMI, Fla., July 18 (AP)—Seaman William Wells Parker, 19, of Toledo, O., was formally charged with manslaughter today in the death of Mrs. Ellanor Eames, 42-year-old estranged wife of a Springfield, Mass., minister.

Peace Justice Thomas S. Ferguson ordered the sailor held in $1000 bond for trial for a manslaughter charge after a combined preliminary hearing and inquest into the woman's death in a hotel room early Monday.

N. Y. Papers Again Being Delivered

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)—Newspapers were being delivered again today after the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers' Union ended the longest strike in New York newspaper history against 14 metropolitan dailies.

Most of the affected papers printed resumes of the news and features of the past weeks to help fill in the 17-day gap. Some compiled booklets of comics, features and serial stories.

Life in Jungle

Is it really romantic for a pin-up girl to be stranded in a tropic wilderness with two handsome soldiers?

What thoughts and fears would race through your mind on confronting a tribe of naked savages who had never before seen a white girl?

How would you live for 47 days in the mountains and jungles of New Guinea, starting with no other weapon than a jackknife?

These and many other questions are answered in "Shangri-La Diary," the thrilling story of WAC Cpl. Margaret Hasti, who packed a lifetime of adventure into 47 days while trapped within the cliff-walled Hidden Valley of Dutch New Guinea.

"Shangri-La Diary" will be published exclusively in the Boston Sunday Advertiser and Boston Evening American beginning July 22.

Be sure to get next Sunday's Advertiser for the opening chapter of this outstanding serial.

3188 Land at N. Y.

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)—A total of 3188 enlisted men and officers returned from the European theater aboard the Sea Porpoise, first of five transports due to arrive here today.

The Sea Porpoise proceeded up the Hudson river and anchored off Camp Shanks. The men then were debarked in harbor boats and taken to the camp.

Units returning were: Military Police platoon of the 5th Infantry Division; headquarters and headquarters company of the 10th Infantry Division, and the 1st, 2d and 3d Battalions of the 10th Infantry Regiment.

Non-Recoil Guns Outshoot Bazooka

By JAMES HUTCHESON

SIXTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Luzon, July 18 (AP)—The troops who gave revolutionary non-recoil 57 and 75 millimeter guns their combat baptism on Luzon declared today that they are "colossal."

"They can do anything a bazooka can do and do it better from three times the range," said Sgt. Thomas Kriner, and others of the 43d Division's 103d Regiment echoed him.

The guns, recently disclosed by the War Department, carry artillery firepower without cumbersome weight. Infantrymen can pack them into combat for point-blank firing.

Bazookas backfire, but the new gun eliminates recoil. The 57 actually can be fired from the shoulder, but both the 57 and the 75 are more effective from a machine-gun tripod.

The 75 weighs 105 pounds and can fire a 14-pound projectile 2000 yards with accuracy. The guns are especially effective in the cave and mountain fighting that abounded on Luzon and which is anticipated in Japan.

Sgt. John Latham, former Columbia Broadcasting System writer, in charge of first combat use of the weapons, said:

"We had only two days' training with the new guns near the end of the Ipo Dam campaign. Then came a pinch and we needed them badly."

"A rifle company got into a tough spot created by heavy machine-gun fire. The terrain was so bad it was impossible to move artillery pieces. Bazookas didn't have enough range."

"We climbed a muddy, slippery hill, and it took us two hours to make less than a mile. The Nips had the spot under artillery and machine-gun fire."

"We assembled a 75 in a few minutes and got our targets—several grass huts 1400 yards away. We got three direct hits in our first three shots. We fired five more rounds and when we were done there were dead Japs all over the place."

The gun crew was awarded Bronze Stars for destruction of the Jap guns and men. Included was 75 Gene Sacchetti, 113 Winsor ave., Watertown, Mass.

$50 Jaywalker

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 18 (AP)—Arrested for jaywalking when she assertedly dashed into heavy downtown traffic, Mrs. Dixie Evans, 26, wife of a policeman, was declared by a policeman to have refused to give her name and to have clung to a telephone pole to keep from going to jail.

The municipal court judge fined her $50. Usual fine is $2.

Blames $400 Theft on Nearsighted Man

The case, which is held over until Friday, is all a matter of just exactly how nearsighted Michael Concannon, 50, of Union Park st., really is.

"Don't put that bail on me," Concannon told Judge Joseph Zottoli today in Municipal Court, as his honor held him in $1500. "I'm so nearsighted I can't leave the city even if I want to."

He pleaded not guilty to larceny of $400 from Mrs. Susan Kaler, 29, of Columbus ave., South End, who had the cash because husband

Everett, a cabdriver, played a lucky number and told her to go on a vacation.

Meanwhile, Special Officer Harvey Yates of Station 4 told the court Mrs. Kaler went into a Columbus ave. grill and asked Concannon, a patron, to buy her some cigarettes.

She flashed a $100 bill.

"I'm too nearsighted. I can't see this," Concannon allegedly said, and after holding it close to his eyes said it was too large to change.

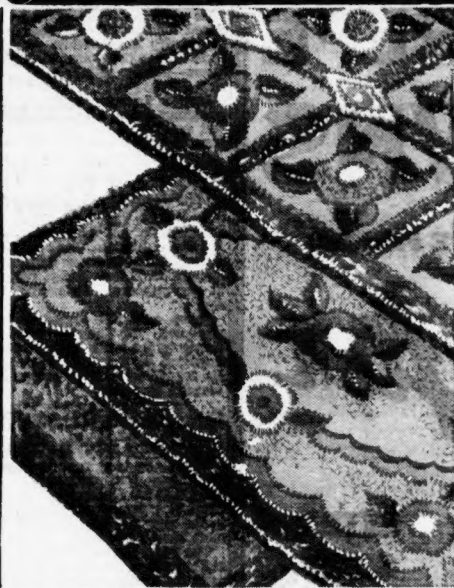

Mrs. Kaler put the bill in her pocketbook and had just turned her back when it vanished with the $300 more, and also Concannon, she said.

Doctor Appeals Suspension

The petition of Dr. Nathan Gaber, West End, for review and revision of a decision by the Board of Registration in Medicine suspending his right to practice for three years because of alleged exaggeration of injuries in insurance claims, was taken under advisement today by Justice Henry T. Lummus in Supreme Judicial Court.

Appearing in behalf of Gaber, Joseph M. Duffy of Braintree, the only witness, testified that at the board hearing the doctors were only interested in completing the case in a hurry.

He also said the chairman declared the board "must work in a hot stuffy room while at the State House there are many airy rooms—mostly filled with hot air."

Justice Lummus quipped, "A presiding judge often comes to that conclusion but does not express it quite so well."

Air Stewardess Job Interviews at Statler

Applicants for positions as stewardesses on planes of the American Airlines, Inc., will be interviewed tomorrow in Hotel Statler, W. Nelson Bump, regional vice-president, announced today.

People Were Fooled On Maginot Defense

By GEN. MAURICE-GUSTAVE GAGELIN

PARIS, July 18—I have a passion for definition before discussion. Therefore, I ask, "What was the Maginot Line exactly?" On this point there are still some serious ambiguities. There are many people, even in France, who believed the country lay sheltered behind "La Ligne Maginot," and that it protected all our dangerous frontiers.

To calm public opinion and to give confidence, our governments never thought it necessary officially to correct this error. Our propaganda permitted the misconception to be uttered and believed, even though it fell to me finally to protest.

The system was composed of a series of forts of varying strength, connected by casemates. There were two fortified fronts between the Rhine and the Luxembourg border called "the fortified zone of the river Lauter" and "the fortified zone of Metz."

The first fortifications were extended from the Rhine at the same level as the southeastern horn of the Haguenau forest, as far as the eastern slopes of the Vosges, west of Bitch.

The second extended from the upper valley of the Nied toward Faulquemont up to the old town of Thionville on the Moselle.

A wide gap remained between the two. On the Rhine, no forts were built, but only two lines of pillboxes widely spaced, one on the bank itself, the other on the level of the first villages of Alsace.

In 1931, Andre Maginot obtained approval to extend the works to the Belgian border. In 1932 the question was raised of beginning the defense of our northern border, where there were only a series of pillboxes on the edge of the forest between Maubeuge and Condresrecaut.

Marshal Pétain torpedoed the plan.

After 1935, when I succeeded Gen. Weygand as supreme commander, it was very late to begin large scale building of new installations, completion of which would require several years. War might break out at any moment. Therefore we decided:

To complete our Maginot line by erecting outposts, including a network of wires, fields of rails and of anti-tank mines, and by building blockhouses, to give depth.

To close gaps in our system of fortifications and progressively to extend it up to Dunkerque on the left and to the Jura mountains on the right by creating "a framework of pillboxes, blockhouses and other barriers."

The Maginot line, properly speaking, didn't cover even a sixth of our northeastern border. Nor did it cover our northern frontier, in case the Germans violated the neutrality of Belgium. Now, as every one knows, it was from west of Montmedy that the Germans exerted their main effort in May of 1940.

They didn't attack the Maginot line. They confined themselves to the western extremity of the Montmedy bridgehead, where they stormed the whole of the system we called the little strongpoints of Ferte, flanking these positions and taking them from the rear.

In June, they attacked on our eastern frontier, in the gap between the fortified zone of Metz and that of the Lauter river and on the Rhine, where they forced passage at Neufbresach.

Ask Golf, Fishing Articles for Vets

What the returning soldier needs is a chance to go fishing, it has been discovered by the Citizens Committee for the Army and Navy, Inc., affiliate of USO.

He also needs to get in a few licks with a golf club, according to Mrs. Sydney A. Beggs, chairman of the directors.

So she has made an appeal for public-spirited men and women to contribute some much needed things for convalescent soldiers who have come home for rehabilitation. They include golf equipment, fishing gear, playing cards, magazines and books, as well as electric irons.

And will the good public please remember it will help tremendously if any of these are delivered to the committee's headquarters, 13 Commonwealth ave.?

If that is impossible, the committee will try to find volunteer drivers to collect them. The telephone is Commonwealth 6810.

Poor Digestion? ☐ ☐ Headachy? ☐ ☐ Sour or Upset? ☐ ☐ Tired-Listless? ☐ ☐

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any drugstore. Only 25¢.

mist and into the ocean. "I'm convinced she isn't," he insisted. "She feared the water. She had a dread of it. She was even frightened by the sound of the surf at night when she was in the cottage."

Commr. of Public Safety John F. Sticks, who arranged for the radio liaison between the blimp and state police cars, ordered a search of the thickets, grassland and briars in the East st. area.

An enigma to police was the discovery of a circle drawn in the sand at a section of the beach known as Beetle Rock. Inside someone had scratched the name "Judy."

A child of two years could not have made the letters, yet nearby were small footprints. Chief Vallier was not inclined to consider the finding important to the investigation.

Judy had pleaded to be taken along on the beach walk. The fact that she did set out in the footprints of her father and two sisters was established by two neighbors, Mrs. W. E. Harper and her granddaughter, Marguerite, 1. They said they saw her heading for the beach, along East st., at a point about 250 feet from the shore. Mrs. Harper said she had intended to go after the child but was diverted by a household task and it passed from her mind.

Mr. and Mrs. Geagan, who had arrived at the cottage only last week-end and had hired it principally to improve Judy's health at the seashore, were doing their best to reassure each other today but Geagan was self-reproachful for not taking the child with him on the walk.

"I don't know why I didn't take her with me," Geagan lamented. "I guess I thought the walk was too much for her. She wanted to come. I should have let her. All the way along I kept seeing little things which would have interested her, like floating ashore and things like that. She loved them and would ask me a million questions about them."

Mrs. Geagan was near collapse. She said:

"After my husband and other daughters left for the walk to Fieldston I went into the kitchen. I thought Judy went out to the front porch. I was in the kitchen only a few minutes. When I came out I noticed there was no sound of Judy playing. I thought she might have fallen asleep on the porch divan. I went out to put a cover over her. She wasn't there. 'A million things went through my mind,' she sobbed. 'The first thing I thought of was the beach.'"

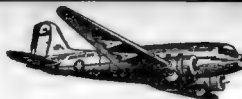

Mrs. Geagan slumped to a divan as a woman neighbor went to her side.

The possibility that Judy never reached the beach was emphasized in police minds by a story given them by William Rose of Marshfield.

Rose was walking along the beach in a direction opposite to that of Geagan and his two children. He saw the trio and went on past them.

He continued to the foot of East st., a road which leads about 12—Boston American, July 18

250 yards to the Geagan cottage. He said he did not see Judy.

Beets Are Plentiful... Here's Proper Method of Canning

By FOSTER H. WEISS

(Head editor of the Vegetable Gardening Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural Bureau, and director of the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser's demonstration garden on Boston Common.)

Beets are now plentiful and ready to can. Because of the cool growing conditions that have prevailed, beets this year have exceptional quality and, if canned before they get too old, will be a valuable vegetable adjunct.

Pull beets just before canning and wash thoroughly. Then cut the tops so that about half an inch of the stem is left. Do not cut off the top root.

Place in a kettle and cover with water. Boil slowly until the skin slips easily when cooled. Dip in cold water to make pulling easier.

Strip the skins off and cut the top and top root, then pack either whole or cut into jars as tightly as possible.

Add half teaspoon of salt to pint jars, or 1 teaspoon to quart and fill jar with hot water. Wipe sealing surface clean before putting on cover.

Place jars in cooker and process 90 minutes of pints or 100 minutes for quarts. If a pressure cooker is used process pints for 35 minutes and quarts for 40 minutes at 10 pounds.

One-half bushel will make about 20 pints.

Clean up asparagus and rhubarb beds now before the weeds get too large. Due to bad weather and lack of time many gardeners have neglected their asparagus and rhubarb. Now is a good time to clean them up and work in some complete fertilizer. These crops will now build up strength for next year if handled properly.

If the asparagus beetle is bad it is now safe to spray the bed with rotenone or arsenate. Control of beetles now will make the attacks lighter next spring during the cutting season. Do not allow grass to get started in these crops or you will have to do a lot of hard work later. Old grass trimming or mulch can be used around rhubarb with good results.

She walks in beauty who follows the advice Ruth Haggleson writes every day in the Daily Record.

'Doc' Sagansky Seeks Pardon

Dr. Harry J. "Doc" Sagansky, now serving 2½ to 3 years in State Prison after pleading guilty in 1943 on lottery charges, today requested a pardon from Governor Tobin.

Governor Tobin has referred the matter to the State Parole Board and has asked for advice. A board meeting is expected soon.

Sagansky, unless pardoned, must finish the 2½ year sentence under the statute, that being the minimum sentence in State Prison.

Auto Dog Death Costs Woman $50

Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mitchell, 29, of Vane st., Wellesley, was fined $50 today in Lynn District Court for leaving the scene of an accident without making herself known.

William Penney, 17, of Howard st., Saugus, testified that on July 9, at Lynn Falls pkwy., Saugus, he saw her run over and kill one dog and injure another.

It was Penney who took her license plate number and reported to police. He said the dogs were boarded at his farm by the Animal Rescue League.

Mrs. Mitchell's husband, Marine Lt. Ralph, a wounded veteran, appeared in court on crutches with one leg in a cast.

He told Judge Ralph W. Reeve he was in the back seat of the car, that he saw the dogs, but did not know they were struck.

Judge Reeve said he thought it unlikely that neither person felt the impact.

Senate Rejects Delay On Bretton Woods

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — The Senate rejected 52-31 today a proposal by Sen. Taft (R.) of Ohio to put off action on Bretton Woods monetary legislation until after a new international conference.

Taft proposed consideration of the House-approved bill be delayed until Nov. 15 to await the calling of a world trade conference by the social and economic council of the projected United Nations organization.

"I HOPE (to see) a cordial fraternization among all the American nations, and . . . their coalescing in an American system of policy totally independent of and unconnected with that of Europe. The day is not distant when we may formally require a meridian of partition through the ocean which separates the two hemispheres, on the hither side of which no European gun shall ever be heard, nor an American on the other . . . I hope no American patriot will ever lose sight of the essential policy of interdicting in the seas and territories of both Americas the ferocious and sanguinary contests of Europe. . . . Our first and fundamental maxim should be, never to entangle ourselves in the broils of Europe. Our second, never to suffer Europe to intermeddle with cis-Atlantic affairs."—THOMAS JEFFERSON.

JUSTICE

LIKE MILLIONS of other Americans, we were pleased to have the Congress pass and the President sign legislation granting pay increases to employees of the United States postal system.

It was not very much of a pay increase, since it amounted to not more than three or four hundred dollars annually for each employee.

It is still not a sufficient rate of pay for a type of public service upon which the American people are so utterly dependent, and which the postal workers uniformly and consistently perform so loyally.

It will not raise the living standards of postal workers and their families to the levels long enjoyed by workers in many other fields of public and private enterprise.

None the less, it is a MOST WELCOME INCREASE to the postal workers themselves, as well as a FULLY DESERVED ONE.

The Hearst newspapers have been pleading the cause of the postal workers with Congress for more than twenty years.

Today we received the following letter from the Boston Post Office Clerks' Association:

EDITOR, BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN:

As you know, President Truman has signed Bill No. 3035 granting postal employees a salary increase. It is several months since this bill was introduced in the House, and its ultimate passage is the result of the splendid support given by our many friends in all walks of life. The newspapers have been more than generous in giving space to our cause.

Clerks of the Boston Postal District are grateful to the Boston Evening American for the many times it has come to our aid.

FRANK GAY, Financial Secretary.

ANOTHER LETTER which we are privileged to publish is from the Treasury Department. Addressed to the publisher of the Record-American-Advertiser, it says:

We have completed a 7th War Loan in Massachusetts. It has been a gigantic task, a test of the stamina, skill and patience of all who have taken part. More than ever, it has depended for its success on buying by the public.

We, here at the War Finance Committee, know what the newspapers in Boston and throughout the State have done to keep the bond buying appeal before every citizen for more than seven weeks. We recognize the hardships of newsprint shortage and the drain on manpower with which you have to contend.

The task that you have performed for us, with all the handicaps in carrying the bond buying message day after day has been admirable, a source of gratitude to me, and of constant and vital encouragement to our thousands of volunteer workers in this bond selling success.

I know I speak for them as well as myself in conveying my thanks for your complete co-operation. We, all of us, will be glad when the war financing job is finished. Until then, it brings true satisfaction to know that the newspapers of Boston and Massachusetts stand squarely behind us.

F. W. DENIO, State Chairman.

—BAYARD TAYLOR.

THERE ARE hundreds of poems dealing with a mother and a new-born child but hardly any about a father and a new arrival. Above is one of the rare poems which give the young papa a break. . . . Placed among my sports souvenirs is a program of a recent meeting of thoroughbred racing held at Truman Park, Düsseldorf, Germany, by the 94th U. S. Infantry Turf Association. Presiding steward was Capt. Scott S. Ashton. First Lt. George C. Walsh was the starter. General manager of the race course was PFC Bennie Abrams. In taking over Düsseldorf the 94th came on a track at which were stabled 60 thoroughbreds in training. All the necessary equipment for a race meeting, including jockey silks, was available. So the boys decided to stage a meeting. This they did with a fine card of six races.

REMARKABLE ANIMAL: Our Springer spaniel pup, which usually arises at seven in the morning and indicates a desire to go out, has been getting up promptly at 4:45 a. m. each morning. I was mystified by this strange behavior until I learned that lately at 5 a. m. a neighbor has been letting his dog out. He has been doing this because at that time male dogs are not usually around. Our pup discovered this. Hence his demanding to be let out just before 5 a. m. each morning. The man who lets his pup out is awakened at five by an alarm clock. What I would like to know is, how our dog knows it is five o'clock and how he manages to wake up exactly on time. Truly a remarkable animal!

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: The Broadway and Hollywood record for amounts of divorce settlements is held by the former showgirl Martha "Mickey" Devine, third wife of Maj. Horace Elgin Dodge. Martha is said to have received about a million dollars. Major Dodge has since married again. His fourth wife is 2 Lt. Cara Mae Tinsley, Army nurse stationed in England. . . . Henry Ford of Detroit, 17-year-old jockey, has been made a member of the Nameakes of the Famous Club. . . . A Boston subscriber reports possession of a parrot the greatest delight of which is riding on a miniature merry-go-round in especially for him. As the merry-go-round the parrot screams delightedly: "Oh, Boy! Oh, Boy! Ain't we got fun!"

TOP HEARTTHROB: Van Johnson seems to be top heartthrob of the younger set at this time.

A young woman in our neighborhood who is in the Sweet 17 class saw "Thirty Minutes Over Tokyo" three times, but when asked what it was about said:

"I don't remember so much what it was about. I just went to see Van Johnson."

MULES & MEN: The other morning the experts of our Mules & Men Department woke up, read their mail and decided they had become famous. From all parts of the country were communications from feminine subscribers asking advice on the luring of a presentable male to the altar.

"Men should know what men like," wrote a young woman of Toledo, O. "What is the best way for a girl to dress to attract serious attention on the part of a matrimonial prospect?" Our Mules & Men Department experts say that too many young women stress the "oomph" angle in the wrong way. They dress in a manner which attracts the attention of wayward husbands in town for a convention, middle-aged wolves and other predatory playboys. Their makeup and attire are the kind that inspires propositions rather than proposals. Their appearance lacks the studied simplicity and subtle appeal which characterizes that of the young women who receive the most proposals of marriage from solid young men.

PLEASE NOTE: Further substantiating the claim of the man who said truth is stranger than fiction is the story of Lt. Col. J. H. R. Hutchinson of the British Intelligence staff. Col. Hutchinson, having been in France and Germany before the present war, was well-known to the Gestapo. There was something in the way of sabotage to be done in occupied France at which the Lt. Col. was an expert. It was decided he should drop into enemy territory by parachute and handle this assignment. To avoid recognition by the Gestapo, Hutchinson had his face altered by plastic surgery. Incidentally, before doing this he asked for his wife's consent. Have not learned whether Mrs. Hutchinson liked her husband's new face better than his old one. How about your face, Mister? Is your wife satisfied with it? Would she consent, reluctantly or enthusiastically if you suggested having it renovated?

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, July 18—For two weeks the standard American daily press of New York was silenced and a news blackout was imposed by a small union whose members normally handled deliveries to the places where the papers were sold.

The submissive attitude of the publishers and the meek acceptance of this condition by the public are a startling illustration of the change in our understanding of our rights.

Westbrook Pegler

The union is independent, that is to say, not affiliated with either the American Federation of Labor or the CIO, but that fact is offered only as information, not as criticism.

An independent union has all the rights and powers of affiliated unions except that the Labor Relations Board has a prejudice against them and regularly tries to force them into one of the big organizations.

It is, however, a restricted union of limited membership, it charges high fees and it has other features of the organized job trust. These are criticisms.

THE UNION defied the War Labor Board wherein, I believe, it was within its rights because I have never believed the War Labor Board to be a legal body.

To make the union end the strike, the board threatened the members with the loss of benefits, amounting to special privileges conferred at public expense, which it never had a right to grant.

Still the strike went on until, finally, the publishers bethought themselves of the forgotten fact that, actually, when a union has violated an agreement and refused to bargain in good faith and is simply pressing exorbitant demands regardless of the interests of all other parties concerned, the employer has a right to declare the jobs vacant and hire other men.

One reason why the employers hesitated so long is that employers have learned to prefer to deal with unions rather than men because, day in and day out, this way saves them trouble.

The union makes an over-all bargain, and the boss, busy with many details of his business, is glad to pay more money for his help, if it comes to that, and pass along the cost to his consumers who are other workers.

These other workers also are receiving benefits from their employers, through their unions, the costs of which in turn are passed on to their neighbors and so on around in a circle.

UNDER AGREABLE union conditions, the employer doesn't have to bother with problems of seniority or individual losses for good workers or with loafing or inefficiency. He doesn't have to deal with the worker at all but leaves all that to the union officials who thus become the real bosses and disciplinarians.

The relationship between the employer and the worker thus becomes a bloodless thing. The workers are, so to speak, the faceless people, called by their union bosses and the politicians who presume to speak for them "the masses."

In their name the unioneer makes a deal with the company for vacation money which the company pays to the union, no longer knowing or caring nor having any right to ask whether the individual worker at vacation time gets all that has been paid in opposite his name or only half that much, if any.

DURING THIS news blackout in New York there came into existence a newspaper black market. Smugglers ran the union blockade and came out with papers which, naturally, sold for high prices.

The people adjusted themselves to the lack of papers where they had a right to find them and paid bootleg prices without questioning the right and power of a private group of 1700 men to shut off the general circulation by intimidation.

The publishers had a right to appeal for volunteers to take the jobs but, from force of habit, continued to plead with the union to send its members back.

One consideration was a fear of violence. The publishers had no intention to commit violence. But, so far have we come from 1932 when the government owed the citizen protection from thugs at all times, that it didn't even occur to them that the police should protect those who might have been hired to fill the abandoned jobs.

Finally, in the biggest American city, for two weeks in a time of great events, a handful of men kept the standard American papers out of circulation while papers in Magyar, Russian, Italian and other foreign tongues and Communist papers were freely to be had.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 18.—Ingrid Bergman knows nothing of the plans being made for her right and left by her boss, David Selznick, because right now she is in Munich with the Jack Benny troupe. With all her sweetness, Ingrid is a girl who knows her own mind, so I'm wondering what will go on when she returns from overseas. Be that as it may, David has bought "Katie for Congress," based on a Finnish play, "Hilda in Parliament," for her and it is being prepared as a Dore Schary production.

The movie, "Notorious," which she was to have made for Selznick with Cary Grant, has been purchased by RKO. I would be foolish not to mention all these plans because they come from headquarters. But just before Ingrid left Hollywood she told me that she had not changed her mind about appearing on the stage in Maxwell Anderson's "Maid of Orleans." That brings up the question—when will she make "Katie for Congress?"

THE HEART OF HOLLYWOOD goes out to Barbara Bennett in this latest tragedy in her life, the accidental death of Addison Randall. Her sister, Joan, has been with her constantly and Barbara is now at the Walter Wanger home, Addison was just making a come-back at Universal and she and Barbara were at the Joan Bennett party the Fourth of July. I thought I hadn't seen her looking as well in years, and they seemed very happy. To those of us who have known him since he was Jack Randall, cowboy actor in Westerns, it seems particularly tragic that he, who was such an expert rider, should meet his death while riding.

WHO SAYS BOGEY and Baccall aren't going to make any more movies together now that they're man and wife? On the griddle for them at Warners is "Tomorrow's Another Day," the W. R. Burnett story which appears as a novel about the time the picture hits the screen. The yarn will have to be slightly revised, however, as it was originally written with Errol Flynn in mind. I hope the newlyweds will note that so far in this paragraph I have refrained from referring to Lauren as "Baby." I'm told that both she and Bogart are very soured on the "Bogey" and "Baby" publicity.

YOU CAN IMAGINE Anita Loos' delight! Rouben Mamoulian, the most sought-after stage director of them all, has been signed by Oscar Hammerstein and Dick Rodgers to direct her play, "Cocktail Bar." Anita tells me that title has been changed to "The Birth of Addie Bemus." "A funny thing," Anita said, "I told Rouben the story of Addie over a year ago and he said to get it on paper quickly." Helen Hayes has signed her contract and is all set to go in the starring role. Meanwhile, Anita is working on the script of "The Gay Liliutee" like mad to get it finished before she goes to New York for rehearsals.

"I wish to give myself up. I went through a red traffic light!"

A LINE OR TWO: Timmy, 4-year-old son of John Considine, had skipped his prayers for several nights running and papa, John Considine, was having a talk with him about it. "Why don't you say your prayers any more," he asked the little boy. "I'm not going to pray any more," replied Timmy with finality. "Don't you want to go to heaven?" his father pressed on. "No," said Timmy, "if I go to heaven I have to die and I don't want to die!"... Paullette Goddard is giving a party in honor of Darryl Zanuck next Sunday night... I had a long talk with Adolphe Menjou at the Claudette Colbert party and he was beaming with pride over his wife, Verree Teasdale. She is to have her first book, "Aren't People Funny?" published at Christmas time.

BOB HOPE writes from overseas that he'd have fun no matter where he landed! That he was driving past the Lyceum Theater in London where "The Princess and the Pirate" was playing. He saw a big crowd standing waiting to go in, so Mr. Hope stopped his car, leaned out and yelled "go on in and see it—it's a swell picture!" The crowd left the theater and started chasing Bob.

IF MAYOMETHOF was able to get tickets, she's leaving Hollywood tomorrow for a long-long stay in the East. She'll go first to the Bromfield farm and then on to New York. Her friends are trying to urge her to return to the stage, for it's no secret that Mayo's been very unhappy. Humphrey Bogart, who was very generous in his settlement with her, is also a very close friend of Bromfield's. It was at the Bromfield farm he married Lauren Bacall.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Craig Rice, author of "Having a Wonderful Crime" and her husband, Lawrence Lipton, are reading an announcement. There were five doctors at Claudette Colbert's dinner party and most of them had a busy evening. Mrs. Nunnally Johnson who is expecting a baby gave everyone a fright, and Loretta Young's baby was born just a few hours after she left the party. The dinner was in honor of Com. Joel Pressman, just back from overseas, and he and Claudette really had one of the best parties of the year. The house and the festive tent over the garden where dinner was served were decorated in red, white and blue with the American flag and French tricolor in honor of Bastille Day. Most of the women wore lovely summer prints. Claudette in green and white, and Ellen Berlin had on almost the same gown. Janet Gaynor did Adrian proud in a pink and green print. Greer Garson came with Lt. Richard Neville both beaming over being together after such a long separation. Her five days' vacation is over and Greer's back on the job with Clark Gable. Mae and Ray Milland, Ann Southern with Lt. Bob Sterling, L. B. Mayer, Eadie and Bill Goetz, Mary Livingstone (who had just received a letter from Jack Benny from Munich), Ethel Barrymore, Elsa Maxwell (still wearing that permanent wave Mrs. Darryl Zanuck gave her), Somerset Maugham, George Cukor, Arthur Hornblow, Dr. and Mrs. John Jordan and Jo Wayne (lovely in white) were among the guests.

WASHINGTON, July 18—Now that the Office of War Information has disclosed the hitherto jealously-guarded secret that the vast expanse of Kansas, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado and Utah is an arid desert, I would like to tell of my own experiences in that sun-bleached waste.

Years ago I was falsely accused of stealing the Old Duke's jewels.

In order to gain time until the real culprit could be unmasked, I ran away and joined the lost souls of the Kansas Foreign Legion.

I found my way to the sun-baked outpost of Topeka with the aid of an Atab guide, the Sheik El Mer Day-J.

"Look, Sahib!" cried the old squeak—I mean sheik. "The fort!" I forgot to add that I was traveling under an alias, Georgiana X. Sahib.

The commandant, who turned out to be a grizzled old veteran, greeted me grizzily. "Welcome to this forsaken hole, where human life is cheap and the sands are littered with the bleached bones of Les Miserables!" he cried. It seems the commandant had done a lot of reading whilst in Alcatraz and was very bi-lingual.

Before commissioning me as a sous lieutenant he warned me against ever revealing anything I saw.

"Your lips must remain forever sealed," he said. "In fact, before you leave here you will be given the sealtest. You must never divulge to a living soul that our great States of Kansas, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado and Utah are but trackless sands, unfit for human habitation."

pack, I reported that one of our largest honey rivers had overflowed its banks and that honey flood control measures might be needed. Ain't I the ingenious little devil?

The commandant cautioned me particularly against confiding in the Sheik El Mer Day-Js. "Don't tell him nothing," he warned, being an old Rhodes scholar. "He is a weatherbeaten blabber-mouth if there ever was one. The only reason he remains in this barren waste is that he wants to stay on the alkaline suds."

"Anything he learns he will tell the Russians. He is forever switching to the Russians. Our spies report he is now working on a document to be called the 'Prairie States' in which he reveals to the Russians our guilty secret that this is an unproductive wilderness, with almost no industry, into which even the barest necessities of life must be imported."

LIFE in the desert was not for weaklings. Often we would have to march for minutes without sighting a cocktail lounge. One time we were on a forced march to Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe—this was after the bloody encounter with the Tuaregs in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie—when my orderly exclaimed:

"Look, Sahib—a mirage!"

"Maddened with thirst we stumbled across the burning sands to it. Strong men though we were, we flung ourselves in the sand, sobbing in disappointment. It turned out to be a two-car emergency.

ONE OF OUR native beaters got homesick and kept crying for his mother. All night he would keep us awake as he called:

"Omar! Omar!" On only one occasion did he ever display unfeigned emotion. Apparently he got exasperated with his old lady. We were shocked to hear him snarl:

"Helmar!"

Life was stern in the desert. On only rare nights did we have the 11-night poker sessions. Throughout the long watches the Arabs could be heard plunking down their discards and shouting:

"Omra! Omra!"

One night on a scouting party—I forgot to mention I had also joined the Boy Scouts—I was captured by the Tuaregs, those bloodthirsty cutthroats of North Dakota's blazing sands. Next morning I was brought before the chief who asked what I wished for breakfast.

"Tuaregs on toast," I replied. The chief scowled.

"Nomad can get away with that," he sniffled, having a cold in the head.

IT WAS a land of fire. Passion flamed. Many a night I would lie beneath a desert moon, strumming my sackbut and psaltory crooning:

"A book of verses underneath you."

"Some dry vermouth, a jug of gin."

"And how!"

OH, YES—about the Old Duke's jewels. It turned out I swiped them after all.

HOLLYWOOD—MONTY WOOLLEY is back where he started, playing the role of a Yale instructor. But he's getting much more money for it, for he's doing it in a movie, "Night and Day." It is amusing on the set he heard Director Mike Curtiz tell this former Yale teacher, now portraying a Yale teacher, that he doesn't speak English well enough.

Monty didn't start raising a beard until he was 39 years old. It was then that he decided to leave the cloistered halls of Yale and become an actor. He had always desired a beard. When he was a kid, he used to frighten the family by showing up at the dinner table wearing a false beard. When he was at college, he studied under Professor Kittbridge, whose "Kitty beard" was famous throughout the United States. Monty used to sit in class and admire the professor's beard with envy.

The full name is Edgar Montillon Woolley. He was born in New York City in 1885 at the corner of Fifth ave. and 42nd st. in the old Hotel Bristol, which his father owned. He went to MacKenzie School at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and entered Yale with the class of 1911. His roommate was the late Thomas Beer, the distinguished author. His best chum was a fellow who was studying law but whose hobby was music. The friend, during his college days, wrote the Yale classic, "Bulldog, Bulldog, Eli Yale." His name—Cole Porter, the fellow that the movie "Night and Day" is about.

MONTY'S chief interest at Yale was the Dramatic Society. He invariably played the male leads in the society's shows. The juvenile was a lad from Philadelphia—William Bullitt.

When Monty gets angry, he marches rapidly up and down, bellowing and ranting like a Shakespearean actor. As a matter of fact, his favorite author is Shakespeare. He admits that he likes to make dramatic entrances and exits.

He was no novice to the cameras when he signed to play in the film version of "The Man Who Came to Dinner." He had been in the movies before, but because of his beard, he had been playing only bits as ambassadors, dukes, professors and mayors.

He hates dinner parties, attends them only when it's impossible to get out of them—and then he tries to discourage future invitations by arriving extremely late. He says the spectacle of community mastication is obscene.

George Holland is on his annual vacation and his Boston After Dark column will be resumed on July 30.

He is very friendly with Ida Lupino, and they have attended premieres together. He can often be found at Romanoff's or the Beachcomber, standing alone at the bar.

HE INVARIABLY eats alone, and seldom fails to have a midnight snack. He generally eats with a book propped up before him. He reads constantly and always keeps a pencil in his hand to mark passages that he likes.

Monty once gave a cocktail party—his only one—for his old chum, Cole Porter. He became angry when Porter showed up with a bearded lady from the circus. Porter's reply to his outburst was to turn to the bearded lady and comment, "Madam, your son has very bad manners."

He goes in for unusual neckties, his taste running to 10-dollar imported cravats with big florid designs. Each tie must be the only one of its kind in existence.

HE IS VERY FORGETFUL. Once he went to see friends off for Europe and woke up next morning far out at sea. Another time, he hid a very expensive watch behind a radiator in his room at the Princess Hotel in Paris, for fear of losing it, and then couldn't remember where he had hidden it. It's been known to go to bed with his gloves on.

He keeps very irregular hours. One day he may retire at 5 a. m. and get up at 7 a. m. The next day he may go to bed at 11 p. m. and get up at the following night just in time for his midnight snack. He's a great sleeper, can sleep twenty-four hours at a stretch.

He's fussy about two things—his beard and his name. He once refused to work because, when he came on the set, his name on the back of his chair was spelled with only one "L." He won't let anyone at the studio trifle with his beard. He gets it trimmed when he goes to the barber for a haircut.

Most Decorated Hero Tells How He Won Three Awards

FARMERSVILLE, Tex., July 18 (INS)—Near Montelmar, the 1st Battalion of the 15th Infantry received a unit citation from President Roosevelt, for being "mainly responsible for destroying German resistance south of the Drone and east of the Rhone rivers," to quote the citation.

My part in that action was small. As he approached Montelmar, we caught the German artillery by surprise.

I fired my bazooka at them eight times before I scored a hit in the ammunition dump. Explosions and fire broke out all over, scaring the Germans and causing the installation—about 150 men—to surrender.

We drove on to near Vesoul. It was Sept. 15, 1944. We were marching along a road when we came upon a German road block. The Krauts opened up.

A fragment of the shell struck my right heel, tearing off the heel of my boot and cutting a deep gash across my heel and ankle.

It was only a slight wound, but I got the Purple Heart and spent two weeks in evacuation and convalescent hospitals before rejoining my outfit late in September. Oct. 2 we were entrenched on a hill overlooking Clunzie.

Col. Mike Paulick, Col. Keith L. Ware and Capt. Paul G. Harris, our company commander, several other men and myself were on reconnaissance when a German machine gun opened up on us from the rear.

Two members of our patrol were wounded. The machine gun was only 35 yards away. We dropped and crawled to cover.

The only way we could ever get out of there was to silence that gun, so I began working toward it. When I was about 15 yards away I stood up so I could do the job right. The machine gunner swung his weapon around and fired. But the gun caught in a bush as it was turned, and the Kraut missed me. My luck was still good.

Meanwhile, I had thrown two hand grenades into the position.

Boston American, July 18—24

The grenades killed four Germans and wounded three.

For "destroying the position" I was awarded the Silver Star. Copyright, 1945, King Features Synd. Inc.

Sparkling Water Makes Many Delicious Drinks

By MARTHA LEE

SPEAKING OF SHORTAGES, you'll find this summer that your favorite bottled sweet beverage will not always be available when you want it. But because it contains no sugar, sparkling water or club soda will be on your dealers' shelves, and many delicious drinks can be made, using sparkling water as a mixer. Fresh fruits can be used as the base for excellent drinks, and syrups, extracts and powdered and liquid flavors are good, too, when mixed with sparkling water. Sugar syrup for sweetening cold beverages makes a smoother drink; there is no waste and it goes further than sugar. Honey is an excellent sweetener also.

SUGAR SYRUP

Simple sugar syrup is made by combining 2½ cups of sugar with 2 cups of water, more or less, according to taste. Bring to a boil, stirring until dissolved, then cover and boil 5 minutes without stirring. Allow to cool and bottle.

This amount can be stretched even further by the addition of ration-free corn syrup, or corn syrup and honey combined—honey adds a flavor. The corn syrup may be added at the time the sugar is being combined with water or after the simple syrup has been made. Equal quantities of corn syrup and honey is used, combine one-third sugar syrup, one-third corn syrup and one-third honey.

For the blueberry season, here's a good drink to try.

HAWAIIAN FLIP

1½ cup cooked blueberries
½ cup cooked grated pineapple
1 tsp. lime juice
Sparkling water

Combine chilled blueberries and pineapple, slightly sweetened in cooking, and lime juice in tall glass. Fill glass with ice cold sparkling water. Makes 1 serving.

COOLING DRINKS

A delicious drink can be made by stirring a level teaspoon of powdered fruit extract (the kind that comes in the green envelope, usually found near the cash register at the grocer's), and a teaspoon of sugar (or sugar syrup, if desired), into a glass of water until powder and sugar are dissolved. Use more sugar if preferred. We think sparkling water gives the beverage more zip, and perhaps you will prefer it, too. Serve iced or cold as desired.

This cooling beverage may be made in larger quantities—say two quarts—by merely dissolving the contents of the little green envelope and a cup of sugar (or sugar syrup) in two quarts of sparkling water, use more sweetening if needed. Add ice. Sliced fruits make a tempting garnish.

Don't overlook the fact that this powdered fruit extract is equally good as flavoring for cool summer milk drinks. Just use milk instead of water in the recipe. And ice cream may be added for a delicious "float."

Peaches, good and good for you, are plentiful during the summer months, and you will want to use them in every way possible. Did you ever think of using a crushed fresh peach

THIS IS the type of get-up the sophisticated smarty adores in her true-to-the-cause allegiance to casual elegance. in a drink? Here's how you do it:

FRESH PEACH SPARKLE

Allow a small peach, or half of a large peach for each drink. Plunge the peaches into boiling water to loosen skin, peel and slice. Sprinkle with sugar and add the juice of half a lime for each drink. Mix well and crush with a wooden spoon. Let stand at least 10 minutes. Place the mixture in tall glasses, add a small amount of sparkling water. Serve with iced tea spoons. A ball of vanilla or chocolate ice cream may be added, in which case omit the ice.

CHERRY SPARKLER

2 tbsp. sugar syrup
¼ tsp. liquid cherry flavoring
Sparkling water

Measure sugar syrup into a tall glass, add flavoring and a small amount of sparkling water. Stir well, add ice and fill glass to top with sparkling water.

SPARKLING REFRESHER

1 tbsp. grapefruit juice
1 tsp. grapefruit juice
Sugar syrup to sweeten
Sparkling water

Mix the fruit juices and sugar syrup in a tall glass. Add ice cubes, fill with sparkling water. This is for a single drink—and one that children like particularly well.

Problem of Teen-Agers

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

TODAY WE'D LIKE TO HAVE a serious, heart-to-heart talk with teen-agers . . . those adorable youngsters who usually make very pretty subjects for pinup art. And, with their mothers, too . . . whose eyes . . . cast into the future . . . hopefully anticipate a glorious, happy young womanhood for their daughters.

Indulging Moms patronize their offspring with everything their young hearts desire . . . within their means, of course . . . giving them the clothes they yearn for . . . the feminine pretties to make them more attractive . . . the love and devotion to intensify security. But, how often does Mom sit down with daughter and tell her about the care of her skin . . . the importance of growing into young womanhood with a charming complexion . . . the intense need for exercising judicious wisdom in selecting cosmetics pertinent to her age? How often does Mom outline the resultant evils of mauling and pulling at facial tissues with unskilled hands?

We say that complexion care is as important to the growing pride and joy as the way she dresses. It presages a future of happy countenance . . . clean and flawless . . . firm and youthful contours . . . instead of a trampled-down skin that looks old beyond its years. We're opposed to heavy cosmetics for the young girl. That they try anything and everything . . . in their copy-cat desire to be femme fatales . . . is lamentable. That's why it's Mom's job to acquaint daughter with a routine that's especially laid down for her and her alone . . . and with cosmetics devised specifically for the young skin.

A cosmetician who has 30 years of experience to her credit . . . and whose entire cosmetic life, practically, has been devoted to the care of the young skin . . . has, for instance, one preparation that we go all out for as a requisite not only for daughter's developing complexion cunningness . . . for Mom's as well. We use it with sheer delight and perfectly grand benefits.

It is not a cream . . . not a soap . . . but a liquid that's imprisoned in its lathering potency the beauties and benefits of both . . . and when used daily . . . imparts a wholesome cleanliness . . . a sparkling glow to the complexion. Whether you're a young girl or boy with a broken-out skin sporting the evidences of adolescence . . . or a fortunate one without a blemish on your precious skin . . . this simple cosmetic is a superior product. It whips up the circulation in the face . . . it scrubs it spanking clean . . . and yet you use it like soap. Pour a little into the cup of your hand . . . add a little water . . . and wash your face. Splash it off with coolies of warm and cold water. Voila . . . a lovely youthful face in all its natural splendor.

For the name of this facial sparkler, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fall Styles Really Glitter

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Fashion Editor

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)—It's a gold-rush season for Anthony Blotta, the master tailor, famous for his trick of blazing a classic suit or coat with encrustations of jeweled embroidery.

From all-over polka-dot mirror sequins to embroidered court medallions; from Napoleonic insignia to glittering coats of mail, Mr. Blotta applies the Midas touch to his fall collection, shown during the Fifth National Press Week of the New York Dress Institute.

THERE IS an air of oriental splendor and pageantry to his parade of suits, coats and dresses which start with a foundation of precise tailoring and end in a blaze of glitter.

Wide Sleeves and Soft Shoulders

By BETTINA BEDWELL

TWO ITEMS in the current styles are very significant from a fashion point of view. These are soft shoulders and wide sleeves. If you are getting a dress that you hope to be able to wear for a considerable time you couldn't do better than to pick one with these points.

The wide sleeve may be wide only in part. An example of this is the dolman sleeve which is wide at the armhole and narrow below the elbows. There isn't a better sleeve from the style point of view.

I have chosen a dress that has these good points for your information. This is a coat dress of china blue crepe and the sleeves, as you can see, are in one with the shoulder yoke so they give a smooth, soft shoulder line, and being wide in the armhole they are particularly good. Zoe de Sale, who designed this dress, favors it under the left arm.

Beauty

EVERY YOUNGSTER wants a face that's on the up-and-up. She's smart enough to recognize the importance of complexion loveliness . . . and it is Mom's job to keep her precious facial pelt as wholesome and natural as a charming adolescent's mien should be. Teen-aged Nanette Parks . . . a Columbia filmstress of great promise . . . is a very pretty subject for pinup art . . . and for youthful loveliness an example to follow.

trasting fabric, giving a welcome break to the straight and narrow silhouette.

Miss Copeland also shows a series of striking cocktail suits, but uses fewer jewels and sequins than in former seasons.

Ashen Bang stresses drop-shoulder treatments, introduces the extended sleeve, with fullness above the elbow.

Fanny Brice Follies Star

Fanny Brice's return to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer fold after a six-year absence revived memories of her stardom under the aegis of Florenz Ziegfeld when she encountered Hope Harding Davis on the lot.

Miss Davis, who prepared the script for Metro's lavish Technicolor production, "Ziegfeld Follies," is the daughter of the famous war correspondent, Richard Harding Davis, and the celebrated Ziegfeld star, Bessie McCoy.

Miss Brice, who will make like Baby Snooks for the cinematic "Ziegfeld Follies," had not seen Miss Davis since the latter was a small girl visiting backstage with her beautiful mother and the brilliant comedienne, then great Ziegfeld star.

Recounting Bessie McCoy anecdotes, Miss Brice remembered that the famous Yama-Yama Girl's costume had to be ready a week earlier than anyone else's because Miss McCoy didn't like her costumes to look new and always sent them to the cleaner's first. The stage and screen comedienne also revealed that the layette Miss McCoy gave her when her daughter Frances was born is now being worn by Frances' eight-week-old son.

Tickets for "Ziegfeld Follies," which is to have its world premiere at the Colonial Theater on Monday evening, Aug. 13, will go on sale a week from next Monday. The engagement is limited to two weeks.

Joan Bennett and George Raft play with romantic fire in "Nob Hill," which is holding over a second week on the Met screen. Joe E. Brown, inextinguishable favorite on the GI circuit, is to be seen in the Laffmovie in "Riding On Air," first of a series based on Richard Macaulay's popular national weekly series.

Ballet Russe Ticket Sale Will Open Here Tomorrow

Tickets are to go on sale tomorrow at the Shubert box office for the seven-performance engagement of Leonide Massine's sensational new dance program, Ballet Russe Highlights, opening at that theater on Monday evening.

Outstanding ballet highlights, heretofore omitted in ballet repertoire because of their brevity, will be presented, together with many traditional numbers. The Massine company spotlights Irina Baronova, Andre Eglesky, Yurek Laskewski, Rosella Lightower, Anna Ivolmina and Kathryn Lee, Franz Allers will direct the orchestra.

The company comes here fresh from record-shattering engagements in New York and Chicago. The Saturday matinee will be the only afternoon performance presented.

FOURTH WEEK FOR "JOHN L."
"The Great John L." Bing Crosby's first production with Greg McClure in the title role, is remaining a fourth week on the Majestic screen and a second week at the Old South Theater. Linda Darnell and Barbara Britton play the women beloved by the Boston Strong Boy.

State Legislature Gives Home Lottery the Swerve

By AUSTEN LAKE

OUR STATE HOUSE SPORTSMEN are playing a game of parlor shinny with the soldier's bonus bill. This contest consists of footsying politically around in mid-ice; and goosing the buck between one and all and nobody caging any shots. Just now the score is 0-to-0 with the goal $160,000,000, the amount needed to give every state veteran and veteraness $50 to $300 as a home-coming gift.

So one statesman fishes in the treasure house of his mind and hauls out a suggestion to slap a 1 cent surtax on every package of cigarets. This promptly sends the tobacco industry into an epileptic spasm. So they don't do that! Then another statesman snaps his fingers and carols, let's plaster an extra 25 cents on every gallon of distilled spirits. Which causes the liquor operators and everybody who likes his drams to fly into a convulsion. So they don't do that either! Then some other statesman growls, Aw, let's soak every citizen a flat $5 head tax! And every citizen, who has become pretty flattened by this time by being belted on top of his noggin, screams with anguish.

Thus, at the moment, all the Beacon Hill daddies have is a big opium dream of $160,000,000. Also a wistful wish to grant every service person a cash bonus, because to do so makes good politics on the chance that the service persons may later feel duly grateful at the polls. Nothing pleases a politician more than gratitude at the polls.

105 Legislators Shied!

PLEASE NOTE THAT THE MAJORITY of BH daddies swerved discreetly around the State Lottery measure, although it offers the most painless means of creating the bonus money! Three more "Ayes" and they'd have sunk the winning goal! But 105 gents said "Nay!" Why? Was it because they deemed lotteries an immoral means of revenue? If so, 805,000 Massachusetts citizens who voted "Yes" for the Lottery in the 1940 State referendum, are basically immoral, too. And Noah Webster says the word means, "Contrary to conscience; depraved." So would the 105 dissenting legislators call these 805,000 adult residents "depraved" and hence disqualified from expressing their intelligent will? Or is majority rule become ineffective within this Commonwealth? And does a strong-headed, activist minority run it? Well, what?

Or was the bill defeated because somebody feared it might set the gates of iniquity ajar? If so, why did the Legislature yield to an overwhelming popular referendum for horse and dog gambling in 1935? And is it any more sinful for our citizens who wish to purchase heartflutters in the shape of colored race stubs at a parimutuel window, than for the same, or other citizens, to buy colored counterfoils at an authorized state agency on the same basic elements of chance—but for more worthy purpose.

Or did the legislators dread a lottery for its attendant risk of creating a political patronage problem? Oh, no! That! For can anyone, including the legislators, mention a state-controlled enterprise, department, office or utility which is not so dominated NOW to the point where, if we abolished public services for that reason alone, it would paralyze every function of state. Not that!

Then it must be because the legislators believe the dumb people do not know what is good for them!

That should create resentment! Because it is not the privilege of legislators to assume custody of the people's conscience in matters voted by referendum, on the bald assumption that state officials are spiritually better fitted than the people to judge what is morally good. Because even if the legislators have finer consciences and ideals—which I have reason to doubt, the people are sure to become irritated, exasperated and thwarted by such censorship and pretty soon vote those legislators out in favor of others who will obey the wishes of the majority—which, if we can remember back that far, was the original theory on which Democracy was founded.

They Allow the People to Be Tossed Around

NEITHER DO WE FIND the legislators always candid in profession of their public virtue. Because where the state takes a very deep bite of all legitimate race track profits each summer, it denies itself a vastly bigger chew of many forms of illicit gambling which goes on under its nose, if it cares to look all the year around. It is variously estimated that this traffic in bootleg race shops and among sidewalk leg merchants runs to fifty or a hundred million a year. Whatever it is, the sum is huge and only a small part ever leaks back to the original investor and none to the state.

So we can clearly establish that a large percentage of our people wish to gallop their fun-funds in one sort of frivolity or another, and will continue to do so willy nilly of state and law. If such is irreconcilable human nature, is not the state, in its sworn obligation to safeguard the people's interest, better suited to perform the job humanely than the many irresponsible types now doing same, including some notorious nogoods and habitual grafters?

In our pre-war years it was policy of our authorities, both low and high, to ignore public sales of Sweepstake and Lottery tickets for the sake of the Cinderella dreams it gave the state, or the joy of witnessing some washer-lady or janitor boosted to sudden fortune. But in this traffic there was a large proportion of counterfeiters and cheats mingled on the same plane of indulgence with the honest sales agents. Both flourished behind a screen of official sentiment and the people bought avidly of good and bad.

In closing I will say I have never known any Sweepstake or Lottery buyer going bust and hence to the poor farm. But with a little research I can get you up a stretchy line of those flattened by the dobbins and dogs. Nor is there any reason why, since the people voted a state lottery in 1940, such a tax-saving device could not, if found faulty, be voted right back into a state of sin again. The people reserve the right to be sovereign rulers of their own conscience in such matters.

Ferriss After 16th Win

By HUCK FINNEGAN

FENWAY PARK, July 18—Chicago's fifth place White Sox, carrying a battery of correspondents large enough for a pennant winner, trooped into the press box here today for a three-game series with the fourth place Red Sox.

Manager Jimmie's started Bill "Specs" Dietrich against Dave Ferriss. Dietrich, who underwent an arm operation earlier in the season seems to have come back quite effectively. His record stands at 4-2.

Ferriss was seeking his 16th victory. The usual large mid-week crowd, numbering 6500, was on hand to cheer him on. So, too was Lt. Jim Flack of the Navy, who coached Ferriss in his high school days, in Shaw, Miss.

Appearing with the Chicago clan were three former Braves—third baseman Tony Cuccinello, leftfielder Johnny Dickshot and first baseman Kirby Farrell. All three are playing regularly. Cuccinello, in his 38th year, is still among the league's leading hitters.

FIRST INNING

WHITE SOX—Mosses flied to Johnson. Lake threw out Schalk and Farrell. NO RUNS.

RED SOX—Lake singled. Metkovich singled. Lazor doubled, scoring Lake. Johnson flied to Dickshot. Metkovich scoring and Lazor taking third. Camilli flied to Hockett. Lazor scoring. Newsum flied to Dickshot. THREE RUNS.

'We're on Our Way' Says Manager Boudreau

There are two Johnsons on the Red Sox, but few who watched Dave Ferriss pitch against the White Sox today ever heard of other than left-fielder Bob. Yet, in his quiet way, pitcher Vic Johnson was compiling a gaudy relief record. His hitting? That is another story.

When southpaw Vic turtled two runless innings against the Indians as they closed a three-game series with the Sox on 6-1 victory note, it marked his 11th appearance of the season. In those 11 games, he has pitched 10 complete innings and has allowed only one run. Strangely, in those 11 games, he has yet to come to bat.

"So long since I've been to bat I've forgotten," replied Johnson.

One of these days, just to be different, Fenway fans should substitute "Let Johnson hit" for their customary "We want Ferriss!" chant. How would you like to play 11 games without once getting a chance to swish a bat?

"We're on our way." Lou Boudreau admitted as his Indians left Fenway Park for Philadelphia and a five-game series with the A's. "We're finally hitting the ball. We lost 15 games by one run early in the season. Now a two or three-run lead doesn't bother us a bit." Lou thinks his pitching is good enough to win, yet outside of Gromek and Reynolds the staff seems to lack consistency. However, the Indians are the hottest club in the league at the moment. They won 12, lost 8 at home, and since taking to the road they've won two of three from the Yanks, two of three from the Red Sox. "This series in Philadelphia means a lot to us," said Lou. Today his Indians were only seven games behind the Tigers. And in early season, before they acquired Ross and Meyer for Cullenbine, before they swapped holdout Rosar for Hayes, before Heath reported and before Rocco and Mackiewicz started hitting, the Indians didn't look as if they could beat the Phillies.

Meyer whaled the tar out of Red Sox pitching in the series. He made six hits in three games. In the final Metko robbed him of a triple with a gloved hand slab against the center field wall. . . . The Red Sox boosted their DP total to 99. . . . Gromek's single with the bases loaded in Cleveland's 3-run fifth was no fluke. He got "four for five" against the Yanks last week. Like Bucky Walters he's a former infielder. His decision over Wilson was his 11th against five defeats. . . . He didn't issue a walk. On the other hand Wilson's wildness was fatal. He gave up five walks in four and one-third frames before Barrett relieved him. Lazor made three of the Sox nine hits, his ninth inning homer representing their only run.

Tony Cuccinello is still leading the league in hitting, though his dogs are barking. Of late he has been splitting double-header duty with Floyd Baker. The White Sox have won three, lost three on their current Eastern junket. They've faced the A's and Nats.

Talbert Withdraws From Court Tourney

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)—Billy Talbert, the national clay court tennis titleholder from Wilmington, Del., has withdrawn from the eastern clay court tennis championship.

Top-seeded in the tourney, Talbert sent word from Chicago that he is in a hospital for a checkup.

Star Dust

EMIL YERHAN Cardinals—Drove home Ray Sanders in last of ninth for 3-2 edge over Boston.

BILL VOISRELLE Giants—Cooled off Chicago with five-hit performance as New York ended five-game losing streak, 2-1, in a 5-2 victory over the Cubs.

DICK MAUNEL, Phillies—Threw three-hitter at Cincinnati to earn second triumph, 3-1, both over Reds.

STEVE GROMEK, Indians—Carved 11th decision at Boston's expense, 4-1.

Dogs Walk to Raynham For Saturday Opening

By JACK CONWAY

RUSS MURRAY'S Raynham dog track, which opens a 23-night meeting on Saturday evening, did not experience any difficulty solving the ODT ban on the shipment of horses and dogs. The 400 greyhounds that will race at Raynham walked to the track from their former kennels which were located near the Taunton track that closed last Saturday.

The greyhounds that will race at Raynham are virtually the same as those that raced at Taunton. Most of the dogs are in good condition and they are expected to show at their best during the Raynham meeting.

Russ Murray is already planning charity nights of racing. Murray is particularly anxious to help service charities.

Last year the Raynham track gave the Disabled Veterans Fund $47,000. This charity will also participate in the charity program at Raynham this year.

The Bristol County track wishes to stage extra nights of dog racing for the 101st Infantry charity fund.

Gov. Maurice J. Tobin told this writer extra nights of dog racing would be given to established charities like the Community Fund, Red Cross and Disabled Veterans Fund. The Governor does not wish the charities that shared in 1944 dog racing to suffer from the curtailment of dates this season.

Chairman Louis Hoffmann and Commissioner Bayard Tucker, Jr., and Harry Allen have expressed similar opinions. This means there will be extra nights of dog racing at Revere, Taunton and Raynham. The Bristol County tracks may decide to stage all of the charity nights of racing at Raynham.

Dog tracks are having a record season, Taunton set new highs during its 25 night meeting, while Wonderland Park is handling more than $500,000 almost every night. It is believed that Raynham will also have a big meeting.

Murray War Veteran

RUSS MURRAY has done much for the war veteran. In addition to giving to war charities, Raynham was the first track to give veterans of World War I priority in employment.

Last season hundreds of veterans worked at Raynham and the same condition will exist this year.

Murray served with the YD in World War I. He returned home a wounded veteran. He is able to appreciate the problem of the veteran better than most people.

TAMI MAURELLO moved a step nearer a title bout as he added Charley Eagle of Waterbury to his list of victims by a one-round kayo . . . It was the first time Eagle had ever been stopped.

Maurello proved when he chilled Lou Nova in a round at Fenway Park that he is an aggressive, hard-hitting heavyweight . . . Maurello will have to wait for a Louis bout until the latter first meeting Billy Conn in a million-dollar show in the post-war period . . . If Conn should beat Louis, he will find Maurello an eager challenger.

4-Minute Mile Soon---Hagg

MALMO, Sweden, July 18 (AP)—The four-minute mile, long considered an impossibility by many leading track and field experts, is going to be accomplished soon, says Gunder Hagg, and the swift Swedish runner believes he's going to be the one to turn the trick.

The long-standing haberdashery salesman came pretty close to doing it yesterday when he was clocked in the record-shattering time of 4:01.4 in bettering the old standard set by his rival countryman, Arne Andersson, on July 1, 1943.

The old recognized mark of 4:02.6 also was beaten by Andersson who was caught in 4:02.2 in the first meeting of the two this season.

The gaunt Gunder set a blistering pace as the first quarter was reeled off in 56.6. They turned the half-mile in 1:58.5. When the time was announced to the 14,000 spectators they sensed a new record in the making and cheered wildly for the two runners, who have been breaking all sets of middle-distance records in the past few years.

The Gunder had plenty left in him after the race. He said the four-minute mile no longer was a problem.

"I believe I could have done it today if there had been more competition," Hagg said. And then, as if to prove it, he ran an extra lap while the enthusiastic crowd tossed torn programs on track, virtually paving his way in white paper ribbons.

After the race Andersson explained that one of his spikes picked up a cartridge case at the start and that he had been unable to dislodge it during the race. The case apparently had fallen on the track from the starter's gun in a previous event.

Several sports writers and commentators said they thought if Andersson had been able to run the best of his would have pushed Hagg to the fabled four-minute mile.

Hagg is scheduled to go to London Aug. 6, where he will try to better his own world record for two miles. Andersson appears Thursday in Switzerland.

Warneke Back In Harness

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP)—Lon Warneke, the "T" Arkansas Humming Bird," returns to the role of starting pitcher for the Chicago Cubs today for the first time since 1943.

The veteran right-hander, who recently rejoined the Cubs after quitting baseball to work in a naval ordnance plant two years ago, will be after his 1934 major league victory, Warneke, who first came to the Cubs in 1931, is slated to pitch the second game of today's double-header with Brooklyn. From 1937 to mid-season 1942, Warneke, now 36, was with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Al Javery Comeback Sweet Braves Music

By BILL GRIMES

EN ROUTE TO CINCINNATI, July 18—Although they are making the jump in four sections, the Braves are on their way to Cincinnati for an abbreviated two-game series with the Reds, a two-night double-header tomorrow.

Manager Bob Coleman will assign Al Javery and Bob Logan to pitch against the Reds tomorrow. It will be Javery's first start since May 31, when the Cardinals pushed across five runs in the first inning in St. Louis on two hits, three walks and an error. Then, he went one inning at home against the Cubs, who belted him for three hits, which, coupled with two walks, netted them four runs.

At the time that Javery went to the rescue of Don Hendrickson last Saturday in Chicago, Coleman had just about given up on the pride of North Oxford and Javery apparently had just about given up on himself.

However, Javery was the Javery of old against the Cubs in the Windy City. He pitched seven and two-thirds innings, which, with the exception of the 1 to 0 game he hurled against the Phillies, is more rounds than he has gone in any one game this season.

He retired the first eight Cubs to face him. But an error by Cullen in the fourth might have extended his streak until Len Merullo doubled with one down in the sixth. Then, he got the next six hitters but weakened just enough in the eighth for the Cubs to score one run and beat him.

On the way from Chicago to St. Louis, I sat with Javery in the observation car. He was in fine spirits, as he should have been.

ARM TROUBLE IMAGINATION

"When I left the bull pen" to take over for Hendrickson this afternoon, related Al, "I had made up my mind to fire that ball, if my arm went with it. "From what happened out there, I guess that most of my trouble was in my head. I just wound up, rared back and let go. And, much to my amazement, the arm remained where it's always been.

"Of course, right now, I'm a little tired. The Cubs are a tough club. You've got to bear down on every one of the first seven. I was a little careless with Merullo, I guess. He nicked me for a double and an infield hit.

"You've seen Nicholson work on me. So, you know how I felt when I struck him out in the second. (Javery struck out Nicholson on one of the best pitches he's thrown in three years.) Yes, sir, I'm feeling great over the showing I made today. I hope that I will not have any more arm trouble, for I'm convinced we have a good club and can go places with pitching."

Friends THROUGH THE YEARS

Highly prized as collector's items are the bronze inkstands in which the gentlemen of the early republic dipped their quill pens. For they are objects of beauty and models of craftsmanship as well. The same care and skill went into the production of the first Wilson whiskey, and as a result, this pioneer brand not only made loyal friends then but kept on making more and more with the unfolding of the years.
